Nice work! Composition is Great.

Its always more difficult to edit files created by others, because its often far from obvious how the file is constructed. In this case, I had a visible group right in front of me, and I was simply trying to ungroup it. I thought "What do you mean, the objects would leave the pasteboard? I'm looking right at 'em!"

After a little troubleshooting, I discovered that the group contained an object that was entirely off the edge of the pasteboard. The rule is that a group can "hang off the edge" of the pasteboard. But an individual object cannot exist outside of the pasteboard boundaries. An individual object can extend beyond the pasteboard boundaries, but cannot be dragged entirely off of the pasteboard.
